FOREWORD

Habitat loss, fragmentation, and degradation due to anthropogenic activities have threatened the survival of majority of wild fauna. Indian gazelle, inhabitants of arid and semi-arid tracts in India are threatened by the above-mentioned factors making them prone to extinction. Despite protection measures initiated by government agencies in range states and local communities in their area of occurrence free ranging population continues to decline; therefore, maintenance of viable ex-situ populations for ensuring their long-term persistence remains imperative. Effective ex-situ conservation of the species can be ensured by scientific management to ensure its long-term survival. This would require management interventions that ensure the maintenance of a genetically viable and demographically stable ex-situ population. Pedigree information contained in studbooks forms the basis for this management.

The Central Zoo Authority (CZA) in collaboration with zoos in India has initiated a conservation-breeding program for threatened species in Indian zoos. Indian gazelle is a part of the identified species under this initiative. As a part of this endeavour a Memorandum of Understanding has been signed with the Wildlife Institute of India for compilation and update of studbooks of identified species in Indian zoos. As part of the project outcomes, the WII has compiled the National Studbook of Indian Gazelle (Gazella bennettii) in Indian Zoos. The recommendations contained in the studbook would form the basis for the long-term management of the species in captivity. It is hoped that all holding institutions will adopt the recommendations.

INDIAN GAZELLE

(Gazella bennettii)

Species Information

Chinkara are horned ruminants inhabiting arid and semi-arid grasslands. They are selective feeders utilizing a variety of plant matter and are both grazers and browsers. They live in small groups and are an important prey species in their habitat for small and medium carnivores. Poaching and loss of grassland habitats are major threats faced by the species.

Taxonomy

Kingdom	Animalia
Phylum	Chordata
Class	Mammalia
Order	Cetartiodactyla
Family	Bovidae
Genus	Gazella
Species	bennettii

Chinkara are members of the speciose genus Gazella belonging to the order Cetartiodactyla that includes all even toed ungulates. The members, of the genus are characterized by adaptations that enable herbivory. These include incisiform lower canine teeth and horny dental pads in place of incisors. Additionally the stomach has compartments for symbiotic fermentation of plant cellulose similar to other ruminants. Members of the genus have cranial appendages – bony horns without branching that are covered with a keratinous sheath and present in both sexes. These characteristics led to its placement in the genus Gazella of the family Bovidae (Hassanin and Douzery 2003; Hernández Fernández and Vrba 2005; Groves and Grubb 2011). The taxonomy of the species based on anatomical and morphological features was supported by DNA phylogenetic studies of the family that placed gazelles in the family Bovidae and Tribe Antilopinae (Hassanin and Douzery, 1999; Ropiquet, 2006). The genus has a large distribution range extending from North Africa, the Arabian Peninsula, the Middle East and India into the plains of China and Mongolia (Bärmann et al. 2013; Lerp 2013).

Differentiating species/ subspecies based on coloration and morphology is difficult. The use of Mitochondrial DNA sequences has assisted in identifying species level differences (Bärmann et al. 2013). The identification of Chinkara as a distinct species Gazella bennettii was proposed by Groves (1985). The species was further sub-divided into five subspecies based on cranial morphometry, horn structure and distribution (Groves and Grubb 2011) and based on chromosome number and pattern (Furley et al. 1988). Chinkara was considered to be a species group consisting of G. shikarii (western and northern Iran), G. fuscifrons (south-eastern Iran to western Pakistan), G. bennettii (Deccan Plateau and Ganga valley), G. christyi (Thar desert and Gujarat) and G. salinarum (Punjab, Haryana and areas surrounding Delhi) (Groves and Grubb 2011); conclusive evidence regarding species/subspecies level distinctiveness is however, not available.

Morphology

Adult males measure approximately 65 cm at shoulder height and weigh 23 kg, with horns 25 – 30 cm in length. Does have smaller horns measuring 10 – 13 cm, hornless females are also reported. Horns in males are annulated with 15 – 25 rings and are slightly curved in a ‘S’ shape, while those of does are straight smooth spikes (Prater 1980). Coat colour on the dorsal and lateral areas is golden brown, becoming dark brown in the area of meeting of the lateral flanks and the white ventral side. The face is characterized by white streaks on both sides and dark patches above the nose (Prater 1980).

Ecology

The species inhabits varied habitats that range from dry deciduous forests to semi – arid to arid grasslands in deserts (Rahmani 1990). These areas are characterized by high noonday temperatures and low rainfall. The high noon time temperatures are avoided by utilizing the shade offered by thickets and the occasional tree clumps. The aridity of their environments is compensated by opportunistic drinking and obtaining a large part of their water requirements from the plant matter consumed (Groves 1993; Dookia and Goyal 2007). The home range size varies depending on the availability of resources; Dookia (2002) reported home ranges to vary between 2.2 to 2.4 km² for a herd in the Thar Desert of Rajasthan.

They are selective feeders preferring plants and plant parts that are nutrient and water rich. Dookia and Goyal 2007 reported crop raiding by animals inhabiting agricultural landscapes. They are also reported to dig up and feed on Dipterygium glaucum roots that are rich source of water. Their diets are known to vary seasonally and in different habitats depending on availability of preferred food plants. They are also known to feed on soil to meet mineral requirements (Dookia and Jakher 2007).

Social Organization and behaviour

Group size ranges from 1 – 20 individuals, with family units comprising of a pair of adult male and female while subordinate bucks live in small groups or alone. Group sizes vary seasonally with larger numbers aggregating during winters (Mean Groups Size 6.78). Two types of groups are reported and include all male and mixed herds consisting of an adult buck with does and fawns (Dookia and Jakher 2013). A female biased sex ratio (1:1.5) is present and fawn to adult female ratio is 1:4.3 found in populations studied in Rajasthan (Dookia 2002; Bagchi et al. 2008).

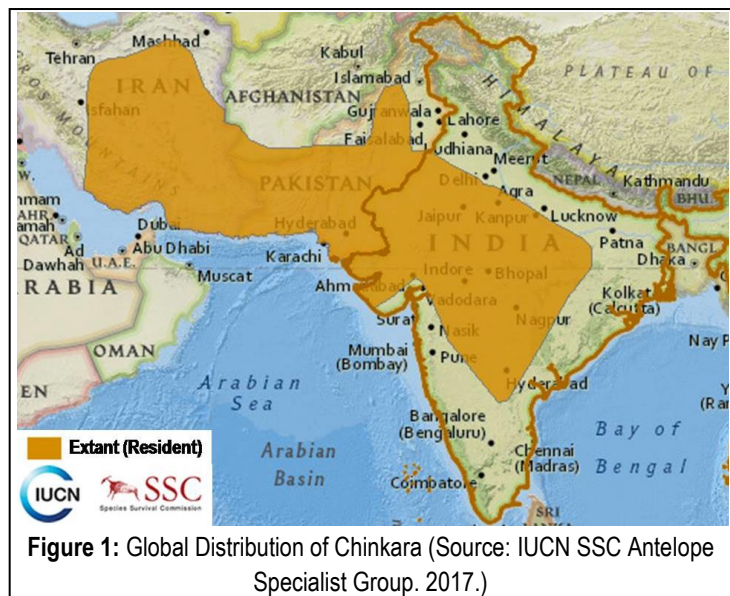

They are extremely vigilant towards danger with at least one member always on high alert. Presence of threats is communicated to other herd members using a variety of displays that include stamping on the ground, pronging, tail movements and vocal communications. Sub-adult members are the most vigilant in herds (Dookia 2002).

The dominant males maintain territories that are delineated by markings using faecal pellet heaps, secretions of the pre-orbital glands, pedal glands and by thrashing of vegetation to demonstrate dominance, additionally bed-sites are similarly marked (Jakher and Dookia 2000). During mating season, aggressive defence of territories and females by dominant males is observed (Dookia 2002). Reproductive activity is initiated by males and includes herding a receptive female, courtship displays, testing phase, pre-mounting phase, copulation and post-copulatory phase (Bohra, et al., 1992; Habibi, 2011). Births are observed all-round the year with peaks during February to March and July to August with an average rate of 0.59 fawn/female/year (Dookia 2002). The females conceive as yearlings while males reach reproductive maturity by the second year. The gestation period ranges from 5 – 5.5 months after which 1 – 3 fawns are born (Arshad and Hussain Gill, 2010).

Similar to other members of the genus and as reported for Gazella gazella by Mendelsohn et al. (1995), the pregnant does leave the herd prior to parturition and rejoin the herd after a few days of fawning. The fawn starts feeding grass after two weeks with suckling frequently for short periods for the first month after birth. Suckling frequency wanes subsequently and by the end of the third month, the fawns feed on solid food (Dookia and Goyal 2007). Fawns remain with the does until one year of age or until the does conceive again (Arshad and Hussain Gill, 2010).

Distribution

The species inhabits plains and undulating areas from India in the east to Iran in the west with highest densities recorded from Thar Desert. The southern boundary of its distribution range is the Krishna River in Telangana – Karnataka border in India while the north-eastern limit is Bihar, India. Westward the species is found in Pakistan, south-western Afghanistan and north-central Iran (Arshad and Hussain Gill, 2010; Gaikwad and Narwade 2016; IUCN SSC Antelope Specialist Group, 2017).

Threats and Conservation Status

The species is extensively poached across its distribution range outside India. In India the survival of the species is threatened by habitat loss occurring as a result of overgrazing, conversion to agriculture and industrial development (IUCN SSC Antelope Specialist Group 2017). It is accordingly placed in Schedule I of the Wildlife Protection Act 1972 though the IUCN SSC Antelope Specialist Group considers it a species of least concern..

Status in Captivity

The species is held at 8 institutions in the Asian region with a total of 83 (37.30.15) specimens, while 6 institutions house 74 (33.26.15) specimens in India according to the ZIMS database (downloaded on 25 April 2018). The CZA inventory (Table 1) indicates the presence of 149 (49.73.27) specimens, at 18 Indian zoos while the data that was made available by holding zoos for the compilation of the studbook includes 66 (32.24.10) specimens at 9 locations.

Methods

Data on individual history was collected by means of questionnaires, zoo visits and from the websites of CZA and Species360. Questionnaires were sent to the institutions housing Indian gazelle in India, requesting information for each captive specimen. Data was entered in the Single Population Analysis and Records Keeping System (SPARKS v 1.66) (ISIS 2004) and subsequently exported to population management programme PMx v 1.2 (Ballou et al., 2011) for further analysis.

Scope of the Studbook

- The CZA inventory was used as a benchmark for population estimates and deviations from the same (Table 1) are attributed to non-availability of required information from holding institutions though repeated requests for the same were made. Additionally information provided by 2 zoos and that uploaded by 1 zoo on the ZIMS platform was in inventory form (group records) (Machia Biological Park (Jodhpur Zoo), Kanan Pandari Zoo and Mahendra Chaudhury Zoological Park). Additionally zoos have changed the information uploaded by them on individuals to groups by merging animals present and uploading the same as groups on the ZIMS platform. The information on groups could not be included in the SPARKS database as information required for recording data of an individual specimen requires information of both parentages and dates of individual life-history events.
- The studbook includes all specimens present in Indian zoos for which records were available from holding institutions. Efforts were made to retrieve information on their holding from the taxon report of the species from the Species360 website for institutions from which records were not received

- The mnemonics present in the SPARKS software were used as names for individual institutions; while for those institutions for which mnemonics were not present in the SPARKS Software, the same were assigned based on their location listed on the CZA Website and the same are listed in the location glossary (Annexure IV). The mnemonic India was used for all specimens acquired from the wild.
- The taxon report of the species records 12 additional unknown animals with incomplete information at Sakkarbaug Zoo; they have not been included in the SPARKS database. Animals for which information was changed from individual life-history events and parentages to groups have been recorded as Lost to Follow Up (LTF) in the SPARKS Database.

Analysis

Demographic Status

Historical Population

The studbook includes a total of 352 (158.183.11) specimens that have been housed at 14 Indian zoos. The first recorded entry of the species in captivity was at Sakkarbaug Zoo, Junagadh in 1975, with a wild origin female being acquired by the zoo. Growth in the population has been primarily due to females with captive born specimens; [265 (125.129.11)] forming approximately 75% of the captive population. A total of 87 (33.54.0) specimens are of wild origin accounting for approximately 25% of the total population. The captive births are attributed to 23 (11.12.0) that forms approximately 7% of the captive population. The population since its inception has also witnessed 286 (126.159.1) deaths. Figure 3 and Table 2 summarize the trends of the historical population while Annexure I includes detailed event-wise information on individual specimens.

Living Population

Based on the information provided by holding zoos and obtained from taxon report of the species, the living population includes 66 (32.24.10) specimens housed at nine institutions; with 4 (3.1) wild origin specimens. Only 9.09% or 6 (4.2) animals are proven breeders in the living population. Table 3 summarizes the status of the living population while Annexure II provides location-wise specimen details of the living individuals. A perusal of Table 1 and Annexure II reveals the presence of approximately 55% of the population at a Sakkarbaug Zoo, Junagadh.

Living	32	24	10	66
Wild-born	3	1	0	4
Captive-born	29	23	10	62
Breeding	4	2	0	6

Population Vital Rates

The population is currently declining at a rate of approximately 33% annually with females showing a marginally faster decline. The captive population has a generation time of 4.3 years. The declining population trend is also reflected in the projected population after 20 years with a loss of 64 individuals in the population.

Table 4: Vital rates of the captive population

	Males	Females	Total
λ : Population growth rate	0.630	0.701	0.665
T: Generation time	3.7	4.9	4.3
N 20: Population after 20 years	2.0	0.04	2.4

Age Distribution

Age distribution of 56 (32.24) known age and sex living specimens indicates a male bias. The living population includes 27 (7.10.10) in the reproductively active age classes, of this only 6 (4.2) animals have reproduced so far (Figure 4). It also shows the presence of 29 (19.10) specimens of either sex of post reproductive age classes, while 10 (6.4) individuals are in the pre-reproductive age classes. The age distribution of the captive population shows a larger proportion of specimens in the post-reproductive age classes, with recruitments by way of births being inadequate to offset losses due to mortalities and senescence. Age distribution of the captive indicates a declining population requiring interventions aimed at increasing the reproductive output of the captive population.

Genetic Status

Table 5 summarizes the genetic status of the living population. Analysis indicates that it originates from 7 founders. The living population of 66 specimens retains 85.79% of the genetic diversity brought in by these 7 founders. Limitations to effective record keeping due to inadequate marking of individual specimens are reflected in only 18% of the specimens having known pedigrees. The living population has the founder genome equivalents of 3.52 wild origin specimens. The population is characterized by breeding between related individuals with individuals related at the level of first cousins as is reflected by the values of mean inbreeding and population mean kinship. The poor representation of the small founder base and high degree of relatedness between individuals is a cause for concern.

Pairing Recommendations

The pairing recommendations (table 6) for the species in captivity have been arrived at based on 'Mate Suitability Index' (Box 1 for details) that assesses changes in genetic diversity, differences in mean kinship and inbreeding coefficient as result of each pairing choice being exercised. Pairing recommendations could be made for only 8 pairs as the population includes 17 (7.10) specimens of known sex and age in reproductively active age classes.

Box 1: Mate Suitability Index (MSI)

It is a numerical genetic assessment of a male-female pair that incorporates several variables into one ranking (MSI range is 1 to 7, with 1 being the most genetically beneficial).

The default value in the table is the MSI (Mate Suitability Index) value for each male –female pair. MSI is a composite score that integrates four genetic components into a single index:

Delta GD (dGD): Change in gene diversity (GD) of the population if one offspring is produced by the pair. Positive dGD increases the GD of the population, while negative dGD decreases GD.

Differences in MK values (MKDiff): Difference in the genetic value (mean kinship value) of the male and female. Breeding a pair with a large MKDiff is detrimental because it combines under-represented and over-represented genetic lines.

Inbreeding coefficient (F): Inbreeding coefficient of any offspring resulting from the pair (i.e., the kinship value for the pair). Inbreeding is considered to be detrimental to the fitness of the resulting offspring.

Unknown ancestry: The amount of unknown ancestry in the male and female. Incomplete pedigree information means that the genetic value and relatedness of a pair cannot be accurately calculated.

1 = very beneficial (genetically) to the population;

2 = moderately beneficial,

3 = slightly beneficial;

4 = slightly detrimental,

5 = detrimental, should only be used if demographically necessary

6 = very detrimental (should be considered only if demographic considerations override preservation of genetic diversity)

“-“= very highly detrimental (should not be paired, due to high level of kinship of pair)

Using Pairwise Info

The default table of MSI values for pairs can be used to quickly assess the relative genetic value of a pair, subset of pairs, potential mates for one individual, and many other valuable data when making breeding recommendations. This can be especially helpful to quickly explore options for pairing individuals at one facility that houses numerous individuals of each sex or to quickly identify an alternative suitable mate if a recommended breeding fails.

Targets for Population Management

The current captive population of Indian gazelle based on the information provided by holding zoos and obtained from taxon report of the species, includes 66 (32.24.10) individuals. It includes 4 (3.1) wild origin specimens of which 1 (0.1) has contributed to the population. The population is currently declining ($\lambda = 0.665$). The population retains a limited amount of genetic diversity (85.79% introduced from 7 founders) and includes closely related individuals (Mean Inbreeding: 0.0313 and Population mean kinship: 0.142). Achieving conservation goals for the population is thus of critical importance.

Multiple simulations were run using PMx to determine the fate of the current population for assessing the effect of management interventions that result in an increased population growth rate desired for achieving demographic stability and supplementation with effective founders for ensuring genetic viability; over the next 100 years. The outcomes of the scenarios that were run without change and with changes (supplementation with effective founders and increasing the population growth rate) that ensure a genetically viable and demographically stable population over the next 100 years are presented below.

Scenario I:

The simulation was run using the current population variables without supplementation with additional animals while retaining the current population size (66). The outcomes indicate that the population in captivity is likely to become extinct within 15 years due to the current rate of decline. The population variables used and the outcomes of the simulation are presented in Figure 5.

Scenario II:

The outcomes of the simulation that was run using a maximum potential lambda of 1.050 and a maximum population size of 150 specimens with supplementation by one effective founder every four years provided a population that was able to achieve the goals of maintaining 89.9% genetic diversity sampled, besides providing a demographically stable population. The population and founder related variables, and the simulation outcome are presented as Figure 6.

The increase in population growth rate can be achieved by ensuring that all reproductively active specimens get an opportunity to contribute to the growth of the population. The inclusion of additional founders should target lineages that are over-represented to ensure maximum genetic diversity in the captive population.

Conclusions and Recommendations

Indian gazelle continue to face threats to their long term survival in their natural habitats across their distribution range and are accordingly listed in the Schedule I of the Wildlife Protection Act of India. Additionally taxonomic authorities suggest the presence of five subspecies for Indian gazelles, indicating presence of at least 5 distinct evolutionary significant units. The threats faced by the species remain operational and the populations across their range are showing declining trend. Maintenance of demographically stable and genetically viable ex-situ populations is thus crucial for ensuring the continued survival of the species.

A review of the status of the current captive population in Indian zoos based on analysis of available pedigree records indicates that the population is likely become extinct in captivity over the next 15 years. The population is characterized by a steep declining trend ($\lambda = 0.665$). The population is male biased with a limited number of proven breeders, though a large proportion belong to reproductively active age classes. It further retains low level of genetic diversity (85.79%) originating from a small founder base (7). Further unequal representation of founder genome as indicated by the founder genome equivalents (3.52) and high level of relatedness ($F = 0.0313$; $MK = 0.142$) in the current population are threats that need to be addressed urgently.

Simulations run using PMx software indicate that supplementation with one effective founder every five years and increasing the population growth rate to 1.05 and population size to 150 specimens in Indian institutions can ensure that the population remains viable over the next 100 years. The captive population of Indian gazelle therefore requires intensive management efforts towards ensuring achievement of ex-situ conservation goals to address the following concerns:

1. The taxonomic distinctiveness of the five sub-species that are proposed for chinkara need to be verified using appropriate molecular genetics tools. The outcome of this analysis should form the basis for development of a population management plan for the captive population.
2. The wild origin specimens that are currently present in the population and those that are included in future should be assessed for relatedness using appropriate molecular genetics tools. The assessment so carried out should form the basis for deciding pairing choice.
3. The presence of 55% of the population at a single location needs to be addressed through creation of species appropriate housing facilities at multiple locations to address concerns of population losses through stochastic events.
4. The CZA inventory 2017 – 2018 records the presence of 149 (49.73.27) specimens; however, information provided by the zoos for the update of studbook included data for 96 (43.43.10) specimens. The data that was amenable for the update of the studbook; however, was for only 66 (32.24.10) (approximately 44%) specimens. The large difference in the actual population and that included in the studbook database limits the accuracy of the predictions made. Training and sensitization of zoo personnel responsible for maintaining records is essential to ensure uniform data quality and availability of complete information.

5. Issues that limit optimum reproductive performance of the captive population viz. housing and husbandry practices and keeping of unpaired animals need to be addressed for ensuring effective population growth.
